Harriet Tubman, the iconic African-American Conductor of the Underground Railroad, was born in Dorchester County around 1822. Learn of the strength, courage, and determination of this remarkable woman while visiting her small museum in downtown Cambridge, MD, a few miles from where Harriet grew up. The Harriet Tubman Museum and Education Center opened in the 1980s and is still operated today by dedicated local volunteers who are committed to sharing Harriet's story and preserving her legacy.

Mr. Royce Sampson, a well-known, passionate local storyteller, will greet us at the Visitor Center and give us a private, guided tour of the Center, paving the way for what we will see when visiting the Museum and Educational Center on the self-guided tour.
